Dear Partner,

Thank you for your interest and time in considering the sponsorship opportunities available with the Queen's Conference on Education, as detailed in this package. Your contribution, sponsorship, or support would significantly enhance our event, allowing us to deliver a more impactful and enriching experience for all participants.

We are delighted to invite you to be a part of the 23rd annual Queen's Conference on Education—an event that has evolved to become the largest annual conference hosted by Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario. Due to the pandemic, the event was postponed; however, in 2023, the QCE team successfully brought back the in-person conference, and last year's team excelled in their efforts to enhance the event. This year, we have numerous ideas to expand and restore the conference to its pre-pandemic state.

The Queen's Conference on Education is tailored towards individuals who are interested in expanding, enriching, and evolving their educational perspectives. This event brings educators together to engage in meaningful conversation and share best practices. Delegates will have the opportunity to participate in a variety of workshops, keynote sessions, and networking events designed to inspire and drive the future of education.

Partnering with QCE will enable you to be part of a conference that fosters growth and professional development, ultimately contributing to the advancement of education. Your contributions are greatly appreciated and essential for making QCE a financially accessible event for our delegates and integral to a successful conference.

Thank you for your time and consideration. We look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

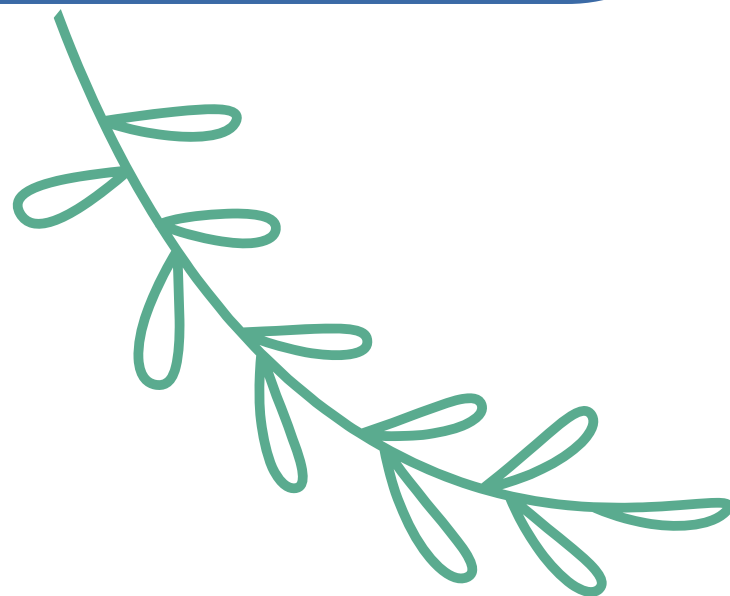

The Queen's Conference on Education 2025 Team

DEAR PARTNER

The Queen's Conference on Education is a professional development conference open to students and professionals who share an interest and passion in the field of education.

In the Education department at Queen's University, future educators learn how to create a learning environment that favors a holistic approach where every single student can thrive. Students also learn how to portray morals and teach skills that go beyond the curriculum. These themes are the main focus of our conference.

QCE delegates walk away from the conference having learnt valuable skills which they will use in their future classrooms to improve the lives of countless students. The conference provides hundreds of delegates with the opportunity to explore several themes in the world of education through dynamic keynote presentations and interactive workshops which range from discussing current issues in education to professional development through refining practical and related teaching skills.

CONFERENCE

THEME

This year, the theme for Queen's Conference on Education 2025 is, "The Garden of Learning: Nurturing Minds, Blooming Futures".

Our theme revolves around the idea that education can be compared to a garden, where the nurturing of minds leads to the blooming of bright futures.

In a garden, the process begins with planting seeds.

Similarly, education begins with introducing fundamental concepts to educators. As educators learn, they plant seeds of curiosity and creativity in the minds of their students. Therefore, the seeds planted in educators today, will become the blooms of tomorrow. Every student should be given the opportunity to grow, flourish, and reach their full potential through guidance from their educators.

BENEFIT OF SPONSORSHIP

Your organization will be verbally and visibly recognized during the introduction and closing of our conference. Your logo and name will be promoted in our Delegate handbook which is distributed to 300 young professionals and industry leaders.

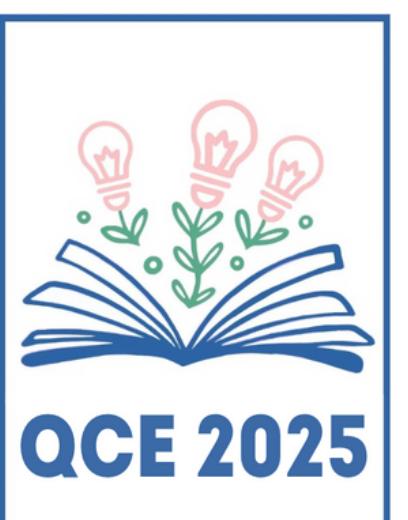

We will provide the opportunity to promote an image that is community-based and future-oriented. Your business will be attracted to a relevant, innovative, and professional conference. A conference that is featuring leading professionals and innovative strategies.

Your organization will have exposure to the Queen's community, as well as students from many other universities across Ontario.

Sponsors will be promoted on social media platforms in a "Thanking Our Sponsors" post. As well as in the "Sponsors" section on the QCE website with an attached link to the Sponsor's website.
